

Columbiana County Archives & Research Center

Columbiana County Archives & Research Center was started in 2005 to save and preserve original early Columbiana County court records and files that were going to be destroyed. The CCARC endeavors to collect and index public and private genealogical records that pertain to Columbiana County, Ohio. Through education and preservation, the CCARC makes its records available to the general public and its members for research and copying. Staff members are on hand to help with research and copying.

The Columbiana County Archives & Research Center also offers staff research services. The CCARC researches surnames through all county files in their possession.
