

Hubbard Historical Society

McBride House

The Hubbard Historical Society is located at the historic McBride House. Membership into the society is open to all. The society meetings often include lectures covering local history and tours to local places of historic interest. Anyone interested in researching the history of Hubbard is welcome to arrange for a time to view and look through the Society's collection.

The collection of artifacts relates primarily to the history of Hubbard. Displays at the McBride House include: vintage clothing, some of which belonged to the McBride Family dating back to 1909; household items such as furniture, decor, toys, appliances, an extensive collection of British Ironstone Tea Leaf Dinnerware, school related photos and artifacts, records and items relating to the local government and local civic organizations.
